Sisters of Invention is a Swedish duo consisting of the sisters Malin and Karolina Almgren. During the last couple of years they have collaborated with numerous big musicians. They have been praised in both Sweden and in the rest of Europe for their unique sound. In 2016 Sisters of Invention won the Euroradio Jazz Competition in Amsterdam. In 2017 they were awarded the Swedish radio prize Jazzkatten in the category "best group". They've had a long cooperation with the Swedish professional big band, Bohuslän Big Band, resulting in their most recent album release "En rymd av färg", an album consisting of music composed and arranged by the sisters. As a duo they have released two previous albums, "Om & Om Igen" (2013) and "Navigating" (2015) both from the label Oh Yeah Records.

SOL which is the Swedish word for sun, is Sisters of Invention's fourth album and contains twelve intriguing compositions. Every track reflects on a specific moment, the listeners can follow the sun as it moves from early dawn, with only a few tentative rays of sun, to dusk when the moon slowly takes over the sky. Mixing different genres and finding inspiration in all kinds of music has always been Malin and Karolina's way to create music. Still they have found their very own, unique sound. Their music can be described as colorful and groovy as well as poetic and vulnerable. The sisters focus on strong melodies and rhythms, and as a listener you can prepare yourself to be amazed by the variety of sounds and styles you will find in this duo. The music is modern and fresh, but in no way overcomplicated. A mixture of genres and feelings and always with personal touch. The Album is recorded and mixed in "Studio Epidemin" by Johannes Lundberg and mastered by Henrik Alsér.
